GOODS AND SERVICE TAX (GST) ON NON-PROFIT ORGANISATIONS

GADDE SHAREESH
CMA - Final Student

Introduction:

Taxation of activities of Non-profit organisations has been carried over from erstwhile Service tax legislative provisions. In whole, all services provided by such entities are not exempt. There are many activities which will fall under the ambit of Goods and Service tax Act that are provided by Non Profit Entities (NPO's). There are so many charitable and religious institutions in India with the objective of promoting Education, Orphanages, Child and Women protection, religious activities and social welfare. These organisations are not aimed at generating revenue but incidentally to the main object, they will be earning revenue directly or indirectly. Taxability of Non-profit making entities has to be decided based on from the view point of services, such entity undertakes. In the following paragraphs explains detailed view of provisions relating to taxability of such services under GST.

Taxable event under GST arises when a person undertakes Supply of goods or services. To consider the activity as Supply, it has to satisfy business test specified under Section 2(17) of the CGST Act and also definition of Supply provided under Section 7 of the CGST Act. Under Section 2(17) of CGST Act clearly states that for an activity to be considered as business, profit making is not a required condition. So any activity without profit motive will also be considered as business transaction.

As per section 7(1) of the CGST Act, supply includes all forms of supply of goods or services or both such as sale, transfer, barter, exchange, licence, rental, lease or disposal made or agreed to be made for a consideration by a person in the course or furtherance of business. To constitute supply conditions like Consideration, during the course or Furtherance of business and Taxable activity has to be satisfied. Activities enumerated in Schedule I & II will qualify as supply even if made without consideration and not in the course of business. In these situations if Non-Profit organisation acts as implementing agency for donor, then grant utilised for the benefit of beneficiaries is liable to GST.

For example if donor donates goods in kind (School bags) to an NPO to be distributed by the NPO in its educational programmes, as these be treated as supply and become subject to GST. But activities of an entity registered under Section 12AA of the Income Tax Act, 1961 is exempted vide Notification no.12/2017-Central Tax dated 28.06.2017.

Transactions by NPO from Tax view:

Various activities performed by Institutions without profit motive will be analysed from GST view which has been discussed below:

a) Educational Services (including services rendered by charitable trusts):

Educational services with certain conditions has been exempted in CGST Notification No. 12/ 2017 (Rate), dated 28/6/2017 as amended via CGST Notification No. 2/ 2018 (Rate), dated 25/01/2018. This exemption consists of various services provided and received by Non-profit making entities. Entry 66 of Mega Exemption Notification contains the following exempted activities provided by institution to:

a) its students, faculty and staff,
b) Students entrance examination against consideration in the form of entrance fee,

c) an educational institution, by way of:
   - Transportation of students, faculty and staff;
   - Catering, including any mid-day meals scheme sponsored by the Central Government, State Government, Union Territory;
   - Security or cleaning or house-keeping services performed in such educational institution;
   - Services relating to admission to, or conduct of examination by, such institution;
   - Supply of online educational journals or periodicals;

Educational Institution has been defined as an organisation providing educational services of Pre-school, Higher education and Institutions recognised by law.

b) Importation Services:

As per the entry no. 10 of Notification no. 9/2017 - Integrated Tax (Rate) dated 28.06.2017, in case of charitable trusts registered under Section 12AA of Income-tax Act receives any services from provider of services located in non-taxable territory, for charitable purposes, then such services received by trust are not chargeable to GST under the reverse charge mechanism.

c) Various Services of Charitable Trusts:

In case if trusts are providing residential or non-residential yoga camps by receiving donation or other charges from the participants, these will not be considered charitable activities (as it is different from advancement of religion, spirituality or yoga). Since donation is received for participation, it will be considered commercial activity and it will be covered under the ambit of GST.

No GST will be applicable if charitable trusts are running public libraries and lend books or other publications or knowledge enhancing material from their libraries. This activity is specifically excluded by way of entry No. 50 of Notification No. 12/2017- Central Tax Rate (and is applicable for everyone, including charitable trusts); but services of private libraries are not exempt from GST.

Supply of any goods by such charitable/religious trusts for consideration to any person shall be liable to GST. So, Sale of goods are also covered under GST scope.

Health care services[1] provided by clinical establishment, an authorised medical professional or paramedics including services by way of transportation of the patient to and from a clinical establishment. Public health will be considered at top priority and government cannot tax such services. Veterinary hospitals engaged in health care of animal and birds also been exempted through notification by government.

d) Donations Received:

Donations received by Non-Profit organisations does not constitute taxable event under GST. As receipt of donations will not satisfy business definition under GST Act and there is no element of supply of services embedded in it. These donations will not be considered in the calculation of Turnover.

e) Interest Income:

Receipt of income by way of extending deposits, loans or advances other than interest involved in credit card services has been exempted vide Notification no. 12/2017 dated 28/06/2017. In these case if income received by organisation under Savings/Recurring/Fixed Deposits will be exclusively exempted under GST. But these amounts will be considered while calculating the total turnover of the firm. These provisions make all non-profit making entities to register under the act and become liable for payment of taxes in case if they

[1] Serial No. 74 of Notification No. 12/ 2017-Central Tax (Rate), dated 28/06/2017, specifically provides for exemption on healthcare services supply small value taxable items. Subsequently all the provision has to comply are required to follow like normal Business taxable person.

f) Renting Services:

Exemption has been provided through vide CGST Notification No. 12/ 2017(Rate), dated 28/06/2017, Serial No. 12 Services by way of renting of residential dwelling for use as residence. However, for renting service, there is another exemption entry at Serial No. 13 for Non- profit organisations, which reads as follows:

Services[2] by a person by way of:

- conduct of any religious ceremony;
- renting of precincts of a religious place meant for general public, owned or managed by an entity registered as a charitable or religious trust under section 12AA of the Income-tax Act, 1961 or a trust or an institution registered under sub clause (v) of clause (23C) of section 10 of the Income-tax Act or a body or an authority covered under clause (23BBA) of section 10 of the said Income-tax Act:

g) Training or Coaching in recreational activities:

One more exemption to Non Profit making Entities are services by way of training or coaching in recreational activities relating to arts or culture, or sports by charitable entities registered under section 12AA of the Income-tax Act 1961[3]

h) Participation in activities:

Many institutions involved in exhibition, dramas, and sporting events etc. which have token fees for entry. These services also liable for GST but government has provided exemption to all such organisations which will come within the ambit of GST.

[4]Services by way of right to admission to circus, dance, or theatrical performance including drama or ballet; award function, concert, pageant, musical performance or any sporting event other than a recognised sporting event; recognised sporting event; planetarium, where the consideration for right to admission to the events or places as referred to in items above is not more than Rs. 500 per person.

i) Publication Sales:

Sale of publications by trusts will come under the definition of business. Also, this being sale for a consideration will attract the provisions of Supply under section 7. Therefore, it will come under the ambit of GST. However, Books covered under HSN Code 4901 and Newspapers, periodicals and monthly journals covered under HSN Code 4902 attract "Nil" rate of Tax. But yearly printed Calendars covered under HSN Code 4910 attract 12% GST Rate. So, publication sales will be taxable and leads to applicability of all provisions to Non-profit making entities.

[2] As per CGST Notification No. 12/ 2017(Rate), dated 28/06/2017, Serial No. 13 exempted Renting Services.
[3] Exempted as per Serial No. 80 of Notification No. 12/ 2017-Central Tax (Rate), dated 27-Jun-2017, [4] So, in the Notification No. 12/ 2017-Central Tax (Rate), dated 28/06/2017, Serial No. 81 as amended by Notification No. 2/2018-Central Tax (Rate), dated 25/01/2018

j) Sale of small goods:

At present many religious organisations charge token money for sale of Prasadam. So, this being sale for a consideration will attract the provisions of Supply under section 7. Government has provided exemption in these regard which covers Prasadam supplied by all religious institutions. Notifications are as follows:

[5]Prasadam supplied by religious places like temples, mosques, churches, gurudwaras, dargahs, etc., Also, Puja Samagri has been exempted. Puja Samagri namely, - Rudraksha, rudraksha mala, tulsikanthi mala, panchgavya (mixture of cowdung, desi ghee, milk and curd); Sacred thread (commonly known as yagnopavit); Wooden khadau; Panchamrit; Vibhuti; Unbranded honey; Wick for diya; Roli; Kalava (Raksha sutra) & Chandantika.

Conclusion:

All activities of Non Profit Organisations are generally exempted. However, there may be some activities that can attract GST provisions. At most attention should be taken while involving in any income-generating transactions, as such activities may or may not be taxed under GST Law. Also, activities mentioned above are some of the services provided by profit-making entities, nowadays. Like, there are many private schools and hospitals which are working on commercial basis. Activities relating to public enhancement, education, general health and infrastructure facilities has been exempted to all such entities also.

SUGGESTIONS FOR BRINGING PERMANENT TAX RELIEF TO SALARIED CLASS ASSESSEES

CMA NEERAJ GUPTA
Sr. Vice-President (Accounts & SAP), Avadh Sugar & Energy Ltd.

THE HIGHLIGHTS

There are certain issues related to taxation of salary income adversely affecting the salaried class which is the most regular payer of income tax in India. These need to be addressed in the manner given below –

- Rationalizing the quantum of Standard Deduction
  Quantum of Standard Deduction should be linked as a percentage of salary income, say @ 15% with a ceiling, say @ 20% of the income exempt from tax for the relevant A.Y.

- Deduction against conveyance expenses
  Expenses incurred by employees on commuting between place of their residence and employment should be allowed as an incidental expense incurred to earn salary income which may be fixed @ 5% of salary subject to maximum of Rs.50000 for big cities and @ 2.5% of salary subject to maximum Rs.25000 for smaller cities.

- Deduction against House Rent Paid
  The condition of payment of HRA by employer for allowing deduction towards house rent paid by the employee should be removed as taking a house on rent near work place is incidental to employment and getting an allowance from the employer is not in the hands of an employee.

- Exemption of notional value of housing accommodation provided by the employer
  Housing accommodation is provided to employees in or near the workplace to make their services instantly available for the job. Hence notional value of such facility should not be added in their taxable income, if there is no additional income to them by occupying it or the income so generated is separately subjected to tax.

- Elimination of multiple categories of employees
  Employees have been divided into various categories, prescribing different criteria for taxing their income which not only makes computation of tax a complicated affair but gives rise to dissatisfaction among employees. Hence same criteria should be prescribed for all employees.

- Review of monetary ceilings determined under various provisions
  In cases where a monetary ceiling is fixed for allowing exemption of or a deduction from income chargeable to tax etc., it may lose relevance, if not reviewed for a long time. Hence these may be linked with certain parameters like the income exempt from tax for the relevant A.Y. so that there is no need for separate review thereof.

- Allowing deduction for amount recovered by employer from an outgoing employee
  Sometimes, employers make a recovery from the outgoing employees, if the notice given by them for leaving employment falls short of the stipulated period. A provision is required to be made to give credit of such recovery, while calculating income tax liability of such employees.

- Relaxation required to be given in taxing of certain incomes Compensation received at the time of voluntary retirement / separation and retirement benefits should not be taxed as the revenue income of the year of receipt but be treated as capital receipt in the hands of employees.

- Offering a suitable Investment option to the retiring employees
  Now most of the employees do not get pension after retirement and have to solely depend on return from investments made out of their retirement benefits. Since the coverage under social security schemes in India, is still not sufficient to take care of the citizens in their old age, the government should provide a safe platform wherein the retiring employees may park their retirement benefits and earn an assured regular income.

THE DETAILS

Salaried class is the most regular payer of Income Tax in India. It may be due to stringent provisions of TDS as well as transparent nature of their source of income but they also by nature abide by rules and pay taxes willingly. Hence it is also expected from the Government to take care of their interests well. But it has been observed that they often remain seated on back benches, deprived of their due. Even if some relief is given to them, it proves temporary, as not reviewed later, loses its meaning soon and turns out to be merely symbolic.

Here are some such relief measures which not only need to be looked upon in present perspective but also for framing proper mechanism for auto revision thereof so that these remain relevant in future too –

1. Rationalizing the quantum of Standard Deduction

Under the scheme of the income tax law in India (as contained in the Income Tax Act, 1961 and Income Tax Rules, 1962, hereinafter referred as the 'Act' and the 'Rules' respectively), income of an assessee is taxed after deducting incidental expenses incurred by him to earn the income being subjected to tax under any head of income, like Income from House Property u/s 24, Profits or gains from Business or Profession u/s 28-44, Capital Gains u/s 48 and Income from Other Sources u/s 57 of the Act.

In the same manner, salaried persons also have to incur certain expenses to earn salary, like purchasing of books and periodicals, obtaining membership of professional bodies, joining certain courses to move forward in career, attending seminars to update their knowledge, making payment to placement agencies to find a new job etc. However, since it is difficult to assess the quantum of such expenses in each individual case, a portion of salary income was being allowed as 'Standard Deduction' u/s 16 (i) of the Act which was later withdrawn w. e. f. the Assessment Year (A.Y.) 2006-07. After pursuing the matter for long*, a flat deduction of Rs.40000 has now been allowed w.e.f. the A.Y. 2019-20.

Though it is a welcome step in right direction taken by the Government of late, it seems to require further review. Actually, this relief has been fixed for various Assessment years in past in different manner as may be observed from the table given below –

Assessment year	Amount of Standard Deduction allowed u/s 16(i)		Amount exempt from Income Tax (as applicable in case of a male resident individual up to 60 Years of age)	% of maximum amount of Standard Deduction with threshold limit of Income exempt from Tax
	For salary income	Standard Deduction allowed @
2001-02	Up to Rs. 100000	1/3rd of Salary subject to maximum of Rs.25000	Rs.50000	50%
	From Rs.100001 to Rs.500000	Rs.20000

	From Rs.500001 and above	NIL
2002-03 & 2003-04	Up to Rs. 150000	1/3rd of Salary subject to maximum of Rs.30000	Rs.50000	60%
	From Rs.150001 to Rs.300000	Rs.25000
	From Rs.300001 to Rs.500000	Rs.20000
	From Rs.500001 and above	NIL
2004-05 & 2005-06	Up to Rs. 500000	40% of Salary subject to maximum of Rs.30000	Rs.50000	60%
	From Rs.500001 and above	Rs.20000
2006-07 to 2018-19		Nil	Rs.100000 to Rs.250000	Nil
2019-20	No Limit	Rs.40000	Rs.250000	16%

As elaborated above, the amount of such deduction which was Rs.25000 in the A.Y. 2001-02, then increased to Rs.30000/-, was withdrawn from the A.Y. 2006-07 and now restored after 13 years with a nominal increase of Rs.10000. Incidentally, the threshold limit of amount exempt from tax which was Rs.50000 in the A.Y. 2006-07 has now increased by 5 times to Rs.250000. Hence the increase of Rs.10000 seems to be on lower side.

Moreover, since this deduction is not linked with any parameter, it is most likely that it remains unrevised for a long period to come. Though in earlier years it was being allowed as a percentage of Salary Income, but since a ceiling has to be fixed for it, timely revision of such ceiling also becomes an issue. Hence, in order to ensure that there is a self-regulating mechanism to revise the quantum of this deduction in future, it may be linked with certain parameters.

Accordingly, it may be allowed as a percentage of salary income, say @ 15%, the ceiling may be fixed as a percentage of income exempt from tax for the relevant A.Y., say @ 20%, so that there is no need for separate review thereof. In future, whenever, there is any revision in the threshold limit of income exempt from tax, the maximum limit of Standard Deduction will also stand revised accordingly. If we see the position of above suggestion in the present context, persons earning salary of Rs.300000 PA will get a deduction of Rs.45000 and those earning Rs.333333 or more will get maximum deduction of Rs.50000 as against present deduction of Rs.40000.

2. Deduction against conveyance expenses –

Most of the salaried class persons have to incur expenses on commuting between place of their residence and employment. However, no deduction is allowed to them for these. Previously, if an employee was getting any payment from his employer as Transport Allowance to meet out such expenditure, a sum up to Rs.1600/- per month was exempted out of it u/s 10 (14) read with Rule 2BB. But if he was not getting any amount from his employer as such, he was not entitled to claim any exemption on this score. However, this exemption was withdrawn w.e.f. the A.Y. 2019-20, apparently as an offset against restoration of Standard Deduction.

Though it is quite logical that deduction against conveyance expenses should not be linked with paying of an allowance by an employer, as employees have to incur these expenses irrespective of the fact whether their employers pay anything to them on this score or not. However, it seems justified that an additional deduction should be allowed to all such employees who do not reside in the office/factory campus and have to travel from residence to work place, whether in public transport or by an owned vehicle (except in case where the conveyance facility is provided by the employer), over and above the Standard Deduction allowed u/s 16 (i). In the past also, both of these, namely exemption against Transport Allowance u/s 10 (14) and the Standard Deduction u/s 16 (i) were being allowed simultaneously up to the A.Y. 2006-07.

In fact, deduction against conveyance expenses should be allowed in the ratio of salary as the amount incurred by an employee for this purpose normally varies in proportion to his salary income. According to a rough estimate, if an employee residing in a big city earns up to Rs.5.00 Lac PA and travels through Metro/Auto or maintains a Scooter for commuting between residence and office, he has to incur a sum of Rs.25000 approx in a year whereas a person earning about Rs.10.00 Lac PA may travel through Cab or maintain a Car and have to incur a sum of Rs.50000 approx in a year for this purpose. This shows that on an average about 5% amount of salary is spent by an employee on conveyance which is purely linked with his employment. Even if they have to maintain a vehicle mainly for this purpose, they are not entitled to claim depreciation. Hence, a deduction at this rate percent of salary, with a ceiling of course, say, Rs.50000 may be considered to provide some relief to salaried tax payers. Though in case of employees working in smaller cities, this deduction may be lesser, say 2.5% with a ceiling of Rs.25000, as their expense on this score is normally lesser in comparison to those residing in big cities.

3. Deduction against House Rent Paid –

Deduction against House Rent paid is allowed under any of the two provisions, namely –

A. To the employees who are getting House Rent Allowance (HRA)

An employee who is getting allowance from his employer for making payment of rent in respect of residential accommodation occupied by him, can claim exemption u/s 10 (13A) read with Rule 2A, to the least of the following, whether he owns any residential accommodation or not –

a) An amount equal to 50% of salary, where the residential house is situated at Mumbai, Kolkata, Delhi or Chennai and 40% thereof in other cases.
b) HRA received by the employee in respect of the period during which the rental accommodation is occupied by him during the previous year.
c) The excess of rent paid over 10% of salary.

B. To other employees

An employee, not getting any such allowance at any time during the previous year, or any other assessee, residing in a rented accommodation, would get a deduction u/s 80GG of the Act in respect of rent paid, if he or his specified relatives do not own any residential accommodation at the place of his work and also if he owns any residential accommodation at any other place but does not claim concession in respect of self-occupied house property u/s 23 (2) (a) or 23 (4) (a) of the Act. The amount deductible will be the least of the following –

a) Rs.5000/- per month.
b) 25% of his total income (excluding capital gains & other specified sums)
c) Excess of rent paid over 10% of total income(excluding capital gains & other specified sums)

Though the deduction allowed u/s 10 (13A) seems to be more in comparison to that allowed u/s 80GG, the former still needs some modification to make it rational. Since taking a house on rent near work place is incidental to employment and getting an allowance from the employer is not in the hands of an employee, the criteria of HRA being paid to the employee should be removed for calculating the amount eligible for exemption u/s 10 (13A) read with Rule 2A, though the limit of salary which is equal to 50% and 40% respectively at present may be revised at a slightly lower level, to rationalize the deduction under this section, if required. Moreover, full amount of rent paid should be exempt instead of reducing it by 10% of salary.

4. Exemption of notional value of housing accommodation provided by the employer from tax in certain cases

In case, an employer provides housing accommodation to his employees in or near the workplace to make their services instantly available for the job, the employees have to live in it as a condition of their employment. Notional value of such accommodation is determined and taxed in the hands of employees. But this does not seem justifiable in following circumstances –

i) In cases where, before occupying such accommodation, the concerned employee was residing in an owned house which is left vacant, no income from vacant house property is to be calculated in respect of owned house by virtue of the provisions of section 23 (2) (b) and there is no additional income to such employee from occupying the new accommodation.

ii) On the other hand, in case such owned house is then let out, giving rental income to him, such earning is separately subjected to tax. Hence the notional value of occupied accommodation should not be added in the income and taxed again.

iii) In cases, when he owns a residential house but was residing in a rented house which is vacated after he starts living in the accommodation provided by the employer, it gives some saving to him. But if he could not vacate the accommodation, he was living earlier, due to some reason and continues paying rent for it, he does not get any monetary benefit by occupying the house provided by the employer. In such cases, perquisite value of house should be proportionately reduced for the period during which the rent is continued to be paid for rented house.

iv) In case where he does not own any house and was also not residing in a rented house (e.g. living with his parents) and starts living in the accommodation provided by the employer, then also perquisite value should not be added in his income on the same ground.

In fact, the views expressed in clause no. 3 and 4 above are correlated. The basic concept is that since living near the work place is incidental to employment, if employee has to pay rent for that, it should be exempt from tax. But if the employer himself provides such accommodation, it should also not be taxed as a perquisite.

5. Elimination of multiple categories of employees

Employees have been divided into various categories, prescribing different criteria for each such category for exempting certain income from tax, valuation of perquisites and allowing deduction from income chargeable to tax, e.g. employees engaged with government, local authorities, statutory corporations, private and other sectors. Even these categories have not been put in one class but are treated differently for different purposes, making calculation of tax liability of employees a complicated affair. Following are the areas where different treatment is given to the different class of employees –

A. Tax treatment of Gratuity

Any death-cum-retirement gratuity received by employees of Central or of a State Government or local authority (but excluding employees of statutory corporation) is fully exempt from tax u/s 10(10)(i) of the Act.

In case of employees other than those above and covered by the Payment of Gratuity Act, 1972, amount exempt from tax u/s 10(10)(ii) of the Act is least of, a)15 days' salary (7 days' in the case of seasonal establishments), last drawn for every completed year of service or part thereof in excess of 6 months, or, b) Rs.20.00 Lac, or c) Gratuity actually received.

In case of other employees, amount received as Gratuity is exempt from tax, which is least of, a) Half month's salary for each completed year of service (any fraction of the year even if more than 6 months is to be ignored), b) Rs.20.00 Lac, or , c) Gratuity actually received.

From the above, it appears that though the full amount of gratuity received by employees covered at para first of this clause above has been rightly exempted from tax, limits have been fixed in other cases. Ideally, full exemption should also be allowed to the employees covered at para second and third above, or at least certain modifications should be done in their case. Firstly, the ceiling (presently Rs.20.00 Lac) needs to be reviewed and suitably revised from time to time. Secondly, when an employer pays gratuity to his employee, there seems to be no reason to consider whether he was covered under the Payment of Gratuity Act or not. In such cases, his entitlement for exemption should be calculated on the same basis, as he would have got, had he been covered under the above Act. Accordingly, there seems to be no justification of ignoring the fraction of year for calculating number of years of completed service in their case which is to be rounded off in case of employees covered under the Gratuity Act.

B. Tax treatment of commutation of Pension

Any commuted pension received by an employee of the Central or of a State Government, local authority or statutory corporation after his retirement is wholly exempt from tax u/s 10(10A)(i) of the Act.

However, in case of any other employee, where he receives gratuity, commuted value of 1/3rd of pension which he is entitled to receive is exempt from tax but if he does not receive gratuity, 1/2th portion thereof is exempt from tax.

From the above, it appears that certain restrictions have been placed for allowing exemption for commuted pension received by second category of employees, whereas blanket exemption should be allowed to all the employees. Till then, at least a provision should be made so that in case commutation is being sought by the retired employee for any contingency like illness of self or any of his immediate family members, marriage of ward, or buying, constructing or repairing of a house for his residence, etc., 100% exemption should be allowed from tax.

C. Tax treatment of Leave Salary

Full amount received as cash equivalent of leave salary in respect of the period of earned leave at his credit at the time of retirement/superannuation is exempt from tax in case of employees of Central or of a State Government u/s 10(10AA) (i) of the Act. However, in case of other employees, any amount so received is exempt u/s 10(10AA) (ii) of the Act, to the least of, a) 30 days leave for every year of actual service rendered for the employer from whose service he has retired, or b) 10 Month's average salary, or c) an amount as specified by the government (which is Rs.3.00 Lac at present), or d) the amount actually received as such.

As explained above, full amount received against encashment of leaves at the time of retirement of employees of Central or of a State Government has been rightly exempted from tax, whereas certain limitations have been placed in case of other employees. Hence blanket exemption should be allowed in these cases also or at least the present ceiling of Rs.3.00 Lac, which was set about 20 years ago, should be suitably revised, say to Rs.10.00 Lac.

D. Perquisite value of rent-free unfurnished accommodation

In case of employees of Central or of a State Government, value of perquisite for rent free furnished accommodation is equal to the license fee which would have been determined by the respective government as per rules framed for allotment of houses to its officers.

However, in case of other employees, the amount calculated in the following manner is added in their salary income under Rule 3 (1) – a) Where the accommodation is owned by the employer and is situated in a city, population of which is exceeding 25 Lac - 15% of salary, exceeding 10 Lac but up to 25 Lac - 10% of salary and any other - 7.5% of salary.

b) Where the accommodation is taken on lease or rent by the employer, 15% of salary, or Lease rent paid by the employer, whichever is less.

As explained above, provisions determining perquisite value of house provided to government employees rightly confines the same to a reasonable level but it is determined excessively in case of other employees. Moreover, such valuation is done on the basis of location of accommodation and paying capacity of employees, without considering rental value thereof. Accordingly, in case the accommodation located at the same place but different in terms of space or facilities is provided to two employees earning equal salary, perquisite value will be the same for both of them. Hence, it should be nominal or at least may be taken at lesser of the estimated rental value of accommodation and percentage of salary calculated as above.

In fact, the reason of treating different class of employees in a different manner seems to be based on a notion that the employees working in some sectors, especially in private sector, may get some benefits in such manner which might escape tax liability, hence tax exemption should be allowed to them in a restrictive manner. This position may have been true earlier, but now, comprehensive rules for valuation of perquisites and strict provisions of TDS have made it sure that no benefits or amenities can be provided by an employer to its employees, which can escape tax. Even then, if it is apprehended that employers in any sector may plan the benefits given to their employees to unduly bring down their tax liability, the tax benefit for such items of income to the employees in that sector may be restricted, up to the extent available to employees in other sectors but criteria should be the same for all classes of employees for taxing their salary income.

6. Review of monetary ceilings determined under various provisions –

There are several provisions in the Act and the Rules wherein a monetary ceiling is fixed for the purpose of allowing exemption of some income from tax or some deduction from income chargeable to tax etc. Such ceilings may be logical in the year when these are fixed but gradually lose their relevance, if not reviewed for a long time. A list containing many such ceilings fixed in respect of salary taxation, is being given here below to explain the position –

A. Exemption u/s 10 (14) read with Rule 2BB for certain allowances paid by the employer -
Children Education Allowance at Sl.No.11 of above and an allowance granted to an employee to meet the hostel expenditure on his child at Sl.No.12 of above are exempt from tax @ Rs.100 and Rs.300 respectively per PM per child up to a maximum of 2 children.

The amount of these exemptions was last revised w.e.f. 01-08-1997. As everybody knows, cost of education has gone manifold during the last two decades, these amounts of exemption have lost relevance. Hence these need to be suitably revised, say to Rs.1000/- and 3000/- per month per child respectively to give some relief to the salaried tax payers. Otherwise, there is no use of continuing this exemption which has now turned out to be merely symbolic.

B. Exemption for Leave Salary
The amount of leave salary exempt u/s 10(10AA) (ii) in case of an employee other than of the Central or of a State Government is Rs.3.00 Lac w.e.f. 2-04-1998 and has not been revised since last about 20 years.

C. Exemption for Compensation received at the time of voluntary retirement or separation Amount of exemption u/s 10(10C) for Compensation received at the time of voluntary retirement or separation was fixed as Rs.5.00 Lac w.e.f. 1-04-1993 and has not been revised since last about 15 years.

D. Exemption for compensatory allowances
There are certain allowances which are normally paid to government employees, like Hilly Area Allowance, Difficult Area Allowance etc., the nomenclature of which itself clarifies that these are not being paid to increase their income but to compensate them for the loss suffered due to change of their posting in comparatively difficult areas/conditions. Though such allowances are exempt from tax to the extent provided u/s 10(14) read with Rule 2BB at Sl. No.7-9, 13-15 and 18-21, these limits need to be modified whenever these allowances are revised. But in most of such cases, the present exemption limits were made applicable between 1-08-1997 to 1-04-2001, after which the amount of these allowances might have been revised. Hence it is suggested that there should be a blanket exemption for such allowances in case of government employees so that there is no need to frequently review these and for employees engaged in other sectors posted in similar areas/conditions, it may be kept confined to the amount applicable for the government employees for concerned period.

E. Definition of 'Specified Employees'

Section 17(2)(iii) defines certain employees whose income chargeable under the head Salary does not exceed Rs.50000/- PA, as 'Specified Employees' for determining taxability of perquisites, namely services of sweeper, gardener, watchman or personal attendant, supply of gas, electricity or water for household purposes, education facility to employee's family members, leave travel concession, medical facility, car etc. It may look strange that the perquisite value of the services of a personal attendant or a car provided by an employer is not taxable in the hands of an employee if his annual income is less than Rs.50000/- in view of the fact that there seems to be no chances of a person with such meager annual income in India at present be provided such facilities by his employer, as a personal attendant or the driver might himself be earning more than 3-4 times of this amount nowadays.

Actually, it also seems to be the result of fixing independent ceilings without linking these to some parameters and also not reviewing these from time to time. In fact, when this ceiling was fixed in the year 2002-03, the amount of income exempt from tax was also Rs.50000/- which meant that if the income of a person, before adding value of perquisites, was below the threshold limit of income exempt from tax for that year, no such perquisite value was to be added in his income so as to make it taxable. Accordingly, this amount should have been automatically increased to Rs.2.50 Lac at present.

Hence wherever a monetary ceiling is fixed, it should be realistic and subject to revision from time to time, say after every 5 years, instead of fixing it for once and then forgetting about it for the decades to come. Or else, it may be linked with some parameters like a percentage of the threshold limit of income exempt from tax so that it is automatically revised with every revision in the amount of income exempt from tax.

7. Allowing deduction for amount recovered by employer from an outgoing employee

There are cases where employers make some recovery from the employees parting with the organization, if the notice given by them for leaving employment falls short of the stipulated period. Since income of the concerned employees is reduced to the extent of amount so recovered from them, credit of such recovery should be given while calculating their taxable income. However, since there is no such provision under the present Income Tax Law, the employers cannot do that. On the other hand, in case any reimbursement is made to concerned employees against such recovery, either in full or in part, by their succeeding employers, the amount so reimbursed is added to the salary income of such employees and taxed as such.

Accordingly, there should be a provision, under which the previous employer has to give credit of the amount recovered from outgoing employees, in lieu of notice period, if any, while calculating their income tax liability. Not only this, if after giving credit for the amount so recovered, the net salary from previous employer shows negative income for that year (such a situation may arise when the employee leaves job at the beginning of a financial year), it should be adjusted from his salary income from next employer. Of course, if the succeeding employer reimburses something towards such recovery, it should continue to be subjected to tax on his part as at present.

8. Relaxation required to be given in taxing of certain incomes -

There are certain incomes which need to be treated liberally by the income tax law, such as –

A. Compensation received at the time of voluntary retirement or separation Compensation received at the time of voluntary retirement or separation is exempt from tax u/s 10(10C), subject to the conditions specified therein, up to a sum of Rs.5.00 Lac. However, since the employer pays this amount to the employee to support his family till he gets another employment, it should be treated as income pertaining to the entire period during which the employee remains without job, instead of taxing the amount exceeding Rs.5.00 Lac in the year of receipt, as considering the position of employment in India, it is not so easy to get another job after losing one.

B. Retirement benefits

Whatever benefits an employee gets at the time of retirement as payment made by the employer in recognition of the services rendered by him over a period of time like gratuity, or payment due on year to year basis during the tenure of his service, like payment for leaves not availed and encashed at the time of retirement and balance in PF or Superannuation Account (as far as the employer's contribution is concerned), employer has to make provision in his books of accounts on yearly basis. Hence, the nature of these dues not being regular but spread over the entire span of service, these should not be taxed as the revenue income of the year of receipt but be treated as capital receipt in the hands of employees at the time of their retirement, to be used during the remaining lifetime of such employees.

9. Offering a suitable Investment option to retiring employees

Nowadays, most of the employees do not get any pension after retirement. Since they may not understand the intricacies of the share market or other investment options like buying of an immovable property to earn capital appreciation/rental income, retired employees have to solely depend on return from investments made by them out of retirement benefits. Unfortunately, there are very few options before them to invest their funds in where not only their hard earned money is safe but it gives reasonable return also. Interest rates on bank deposits and other government run schemes have come down to such a lower level that even a person getting retirement benefits, say to the tune of Rs.50.00 Lac cannot expect more than a meager return of Rs.3.00 Lac PA @ 6%, then what to say about those who get lesser amount as retirement benefits.

Hence, the Government should seriously think over forming a special Fund wherein employees from any sector may put their retirement benefits at for a fixed tenure, extendable at their option, with assured reasonable return which is exempt from tax, with an option to get an annuity on monthly basis. This is all the more necessary in view of the fact that the coverage under social security schemes in India, is still not sufficient to take care of the citizens in their old age.

Though the scheme 'Pradhan Mantri Vaya Vandana Yojana (PMVVY), announced for senior citizens under Budget proposals 2017 was a step in right direction, it also needs certain modifications like the scheme should be open at all the times and not for a specified period, the period of deposit which is 10 years at present, should be extendable at the option of the depositor, maximum amount which can be invested under the scheme should be suitably increased from Rs.10.00 Lac at present to, say Rs.30.00 Lac and the rate of interest which is 8% at present may be linked with the rate applicable in respect of PF.

In this way, there are certain anomalies regarding taxing of salary income in India. Hence it is submitted that the relevant provisions be reviewed and those found inconsistent or outdated be removed/modified. Considering the contribution of salaried tax payers in the revenue from Income Tax and their vulnerable position, it is expected that their case would be taken up by the Finance Minister on just and humanitarian grounds on the lines of suggestions given hereinabove.

HIGHLIGHTS OF INDIA BUDGET 2019 - 2020

TAXATION

Income Tax

- Income Tax Slabs Remain Unchanged. However, No Income Tax For Individuals With Income Up to ₹ 5,00,000

  Individual taxpayers with an annual taxable income of upto ₹ 5 Lakhs will now get full tax rebate. This means, no income tax will have to be paid by individual falling in this income category. It is because the tax rebate which was earlier ₹ 2,500 has now been raised to ₹ 12,500. This makes the income tax turn out to be NIL for taxpayers earning less than ₹ 5,00,00 per annum.

- Rebate u/s 87A

  The rebate under Section 87A of the Income tax Act, 1961, has been raised to ₹ 12,500. It is only applicable for those with net taxable income of up to ₹ 5 lakhs.

- Effect on Gross Income

  Individuals with a gross income of ₹ 6.50 lakhs will not be required to pay any income tax. Provided they have made investments in PF, Insurance, Savings etc. Not only this, if we consider the following additional deductions in calculation of income tax, people with even higher income will not have to pay any tax.

  Deductions include:
  - Interest on Home Loan upto ₹ 2 Lakh
  - Interest on Education Loan
  - National Pension Scheme Contributions
  - Medical Insurance
  - Medical Expenditures on Senior Citizens etc

- Standard Deduction for Salaried Employees

  The Standard Deduction for Salaried Employees has increased from ₹ 40,000 to ₹ 50,000.

  Standard Deduction
  Standard Deduction refers to deduction allowed as per the Income Tax irrespective of the expenses met or the investment made by the individual. An individual is not required to disclose any investment proofs or expense bills for this purpose, the Standard Deduction is allowed at a standard rate.

- Benefits to Small Business

  Special benefits and incentives were also given to small businesses and start-ups. Overall compliance processes were simplified. Threshold limit for presumptive taxation of business was raised from ₹ 1 crore to ₹ 2 crore. The benefit of presumptive taxation was extended for the first time to small professionals fixing threshold limit at ₹ 50 lakhs. In order to promote a less cash economy, the presumptive profit rate has been reduced from 8% to 6%. The tax rate for companies with turnover 15 of up to ₹ 250 crore, covering almost 99% of the companies, was reduced to 25% which was also applicable to new manufacturing companies without any turnover limits.

- Notional Rent on Second Self-Occupied House

  In the Budget, the finance minister proposed exemption from notional rent in respect of two self-occupied house properties. Currently, if a person has two properties which are self-occupied, deemed rent from one of the house properties is taxable.

  In the interim budget, government has proposed to exempt levy of income tax on notional rent on a second self-occupied house

- TDS Threshold on Interest Earned On Bank or Post Office Deposits

  TDS limit on such interest earned has been raised from 10,000 to ₹ 40,000. Additionally, TDS limit for deduction of tax on rent is proposed to be increased from ₹ 1,80,000 to ₹ 2,40,000. This has been undertaken to provide relief to small taxpayers.

- Rollover of Capital Gains Under Section 54

  Earlier, the benefit of the rollover of capital gains under the Income Tax Act was restricted to investment in one residential house. This has now increased from investment in one residential house to two residential houses. Such an increment is for a taxpayer having capital gains upto ₹ 2 Crore. And such a benefit can be availed just once in a lifetime.

- Section 80 IB (A) of Income Tax Act Extended

  For making more homes available under affordable housing, the benefits under section 80 IB (A) of the Income tax Act has been extended for one more year. This means housing projects approved till March 31, 2020 can claim benefits under section 80 IB (A).

Goods and Services Tax

Exemptions from GST for small businesses have been doubled from ₹ 20 lakhs to ₹ 40 lakhs. Further, small businesses having turnover up to ₹ 1.5 crore have been given an attractive composition scheme wherein they pay only 1% flat rate and have to file one annual return only. Similarly, small service providers with turnover upto ₹ 50 lakhs can now opt for composition scheme and pay GST at 6% instead of 18%. More than 35 lakhs small traders, manufacturers and service providers will benefit from these trader friendly measures. Soon, businesses comprising over 90% of GST payers will be allowed to file quarterly return.

Customs and Trading Across Border

To promote the “Make in India” initiative, we have undertaken rationalization of customs duties and procedures. Our Government has abolished duties on 36 capital goods. A revised system of importing duty-free capital goods and inputs for manufacture and export has been introduced, along with introduction of single point of approval under section 65 of the Customs Act. Indian Customs is introducing full and comprehensive digitalization of export/import transactions and leveraging RFID technology to improve export logistics.

PRESS RELEASE
DATE - 20.01.2019

Press Release on TDS issue for CBDT

Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) today said that certain news items that appeared in a section of media regarding enmasse issue of prosecution notices to small companies for TDS default are completely misleading and full of factual inaccuracies. CBDT clarified that Mumbai Income Tax TDS office has issued prosecution show cause notices only in a limited number of big cases where more than Rs. 5 lakh of tax was collected as TDS from employees etc and yet the same was not deposited with the Income Tax Department in time.

CBDT said that some defaulter companies and vested interests are deliberately misleading the media to thwart action against themselves. Having deducted tax from employees and other taxpayers and not depositing the same in time in the government treasury is an offence punishable under the law. It also affects interest of the employees from whose salary the tax has been deducted by the unscrupulous employers who have not deposited the same in time in the government treasury. If the TDS is not deposited in time, the employee would be ineligible for claiming credit of the tax deducted when he files his own return.

CBDT stated that in last one month only in 50 big cases prosecution notices have been issued by Mumbai IT TDS office. Out of these, in 80% of the cases the TDS tax default is above Rs. 10 lakh and in 10 % cases TDS default is between Rs. 5 to 10 lakh. In the remaining 10% cases, TDS default is of more than Rs. 1 crore as detected in the survey. Prosecutions have also recently been launched against 4 big business houses where more than Rs 50 Crore of tax was collected by them from the tax payers and yet not deposited with the Government in time. But such legal and rightful action is being unfortunately projected in the media by the vested interests as if the department is going overboard to harass small employers. It would be pertinent to note that in a country of 130 Crore people where around 6 Crore returns are filed every year, only a total of 1400 prosecutions have been filed so far for various offences under the Income Tax Act during this financial year. This, by any stretch of imagination, cannot be termed as mass harassment by the income tax department. Therefore, to say that prosecution notices enmasse have been sent to taxpayers for minor defaults is completely incorrect and misleading, CBDT added.

CBDT identifies non-filers through Non-filers Monitoring System(NMS) by using Data Analytics

The Non-filers Monitoring System (NMS) aims to identify and monitor persons who enter into high value transactions and have potential tax liabilities but have still not filed their tax returns. Analysis was carried out to identify non-filers about whom specific information was available in the database of the Department. The sources of information include Statement of Financial Transactions (SFT), Tax Deduction at Source (TDS), Tax Collection at Source (TCS), information about foreign remittances, exports and imports data etc.

Data analysis has identified several potential non-filers who have carried out high value transactions in Financial Year 2017-18 but have still not filed Income Tax Return for Assessment Year 2018-19 (relating to FY 2017-18).

The Department has enabled e-verification of these NMS cases to reduce the compliance cost for taxpayers by soliciting their response online. It is reiterated that there is no need to visit any Income Tax office for submitting response, as the entire process is to be completed online. Taxpayers can access information related to their case from the „Compliance portal" which is accessible through the e-filing portal of the Department at https://incometaxindiaefiling.gov.in. The PAN holder should submit the response electronically on the Compliance Portal and keep a printout of the submitted response for record purposes. User Guide and FAQs are provided under the "Resources" menu on Compliance Portal.

Non-filers are requested to assess their tax liability for AY 2018-19 and file the Income Tax Returns (ITR) or submit online response within 21 days. If the explanation offered is found to be satisfactory, matters will be closed online. However, in cases where no return is filed or no response is received, initiation of proceedings under the Income-tax Act, 1961 will be considered.
